METROPOLITAN WASHINGTON COUNCIL OF GOVERNMENTS

About COG

FOR MORE THAN 50 YEARS, the Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments, known as COG, has helped develop regional solutions to such issues as the environment, affordable housing, growth and development, public health, child welfare, public safety, homeland security, and transportation. COG is an independent, nonprofit association comprised of elected officials from 21 local governments, members of the Maryland and Virginia state legislatures, and members of the U.S. Congress.

Policies are set through the COG Board of Directors, the National Capital Region Transportation Planning Board, and the Metropolitan Washington Air Quality Committee. These three boards are responsible for a broad range of issues under the COG umbrella. Supporting committees help shape programs through the dedicated work of a wide array of public servants, from police chiefs to social workers.

COG Board of Directors

The Board of Directors is COG's governing body and is responsible for its overall policies, functions, and funds. Board members are appointed each year by the participating local governments and by caucuses of state legislative delegations from the region. The COG Board takes action on committee recommendations, discusses current and emerging regional problems, and receives briefings on issues facing the region. Board meetings are open to the public, and representatives from the media frequently attend.

The COG Board meets monthly.

Please visit www.mwcog.org for the latest information on meeting dates and times.

Message from the Board Chair and Executive Director

COG WAS PROUD TO WORK HAND-IN-HAND with its member governments as 2009 posed major challenges for metropolitan Washington's elected officials and its business and community leaders.

First, COG members had to respond effectively to a recession that decimated government budgets, services and the housing market around the region. Then, because the region's rapid growth rate is expected to return soon, they needed to address land-use, transportation, environmental and economic challenges in order to better serve the community in the coming decades. COG members also began to confront the very difficult issue of how to develop a workforce with skills relevant to the economy of the future.

COG Mission

COG IS THE PREMIER FORUM TO RESOLVE REGIONAL ISSUES BY CONVENING LOCAL GOVERNMENTS AND OTHER STAKEHOLDERS. IT IS THE PLACE WHERE INTERGOVERNMENTAL PLANS ARE DEVELOPED TO ENHANCE THE QUALITY OF LIFE IN THE NATIONAL CAPITAL REGION.

Budget cuts and reduced services were the first steps needed to address the current recession. Then, elected leaders completed two initiatives that will shape the region and help develop its economy in the years to come. Region Forward®, the report of the Greater Washington 2050 Coalition, offers broad plans for the region and sets benchmarks to measure progress toward becoming economically competitive in terms of job growth, housing, transportation and the environment. Closing the Gaps to Build the Future, the report of the Workforce Competitiveness taskforce, is designed to help regional leaders begin preparing area residents for jobs needed in the new economy.

Although job development has not been part of the regional work program in past years, area leaders believe joint planning and cooperation will reap rewards for workers in every jurisdiction. For its part, COG will work to help shape a program that will enhance education, training and job opportunities at all levels.

We hope this annual report demonstrates how all the jurisdictions in metropolitan Washington continue to work together and move the region forward.

COG Vision
THE ELECTED OFFICIALS OF COG ENVISION THE NATIONAL CAPITAL REGION AS THE BEST PLACE TO LIVE, WORK, PLAY AND LEARN. COG FOSTERS REGIONALISM BY PROMOTING REGIONAL PARTNERSHIPS, DEVELOPING BEST PRACTICES, APPLYING CUTTING-EDGE TECHNOLOGIES, AND PROVIDING A FORUM FOR DECISION-MAKING.

Transportation Planning Board (TPB)

The National Capital Region Transportation Planning Board (TPB) is the federally designated Metropolitan Planning Organization (MPO) for the region, and plays an important role as the regional forum for transportation planning. The TPB is responsible for developing regional transportation policy and a long-range transportation plan for the metropolitan Washington region, as well as programs that the federal government must approve in order for federal-aid transportation funds to flow to the area. The TPB was created in 1965 by an agreement among local governments and the state departments of transportation in response to the requirements of the Federal Aid Highway Act of 1962. In July 1966, by mutual agreement, the TPB became associated with COG. The TPB meets monthly.

Region 20 Forward

A Comprehensive Guide for Regional Planning and Measuring Progress in the 21st Century

Prepared by the Greater Washington 2050 Coalition
Approved by the COG Board of Directors on January 5, 2010

IN JANUARY 2010, the COG Board of Directors approved Region Forward, a comprehensive, new guide for achieving environmental, transportation, economic and other goals that will place the National Capital Region in the forefront of metropolitan areas nationally and globally. Region Forward was developed over the past year-and-a-half by the Greater Washington 2050 Coalition, a group of public officials and business, civic and environmental leaders created by COG to help the region meet interrelated challenges like population growth, climate change, traffic congestion, and disparities in public safety, health, and education.

Metropolitan Washington Air Quality Committee (MWAQC)

The Metropolitan Washington Air Quality Committee (MWAQC) is the entity certified by the mayor of the District of Columbia and the governors of Maryland and Virginia to prepare an air quality plan for the Washington Metropolitan Area under the Federal Clean Air Act Amendments of 1990. In executing its responsibilities, MWAQC coordinates air quality planning activities among COG and other external committees and the Transportation Planning Board, reviews policies, resolves policy differences, and adopts a regional air quality plan for transmittal to the District of Columbia and the states of Maryland and Virginia. MWAQC meets 8 times a year.

“Residents of the District of Columbia, suburban Maryland and Northern Virginia know our futures are interconnected,” said Fairfax County Board of Supervisors Chairman Sharon Bulova, who served as Greater Washington 2050 Coalition Chair. “With Region Forward, we have a plan that reflects our shared goals and demonstrates the many benefits of working together more closely.”

The Coalition developed its set of goals by selecting the best elements from local government visions, previous COG plans, a workshop that studied bold future scenarios, and public input from a survey of thousands of area residents. Region Forward also includes targets designed to measure progress toward the goals as well as a voluntary compact agreement for local governments to endorse and refer to when making decisions.

In the fall of 2009, COG embarked on extensive outreach through presentations at local government meetings, public forums, news stories, podcasts, and targeted advertising to get feedback on the Region Forward draft. After receiving nearly 400 comments from local government officials, business and civic groups, and area residents, COG used the input to strengthen the final report.

In early 2010, COG will ask each of its 21 member governments to support Region Forward and its compact. While voluntary, the compact will motivate cities and counties in the region to pledge to use their best efforts to advance the goals in Region Forward. By endorsing it, local governments will agree to have COG take on a new responsibility to measure regional progress toward the goals about every three years. COG will also conduct public surveys on a regular basis to provide a clearer picture of regional progress and develop and refine strategies for meeting the goals. Finally, COG will launch a new web site, regionforward.org, to educate stakeholders and citizens about Region Forward and build broad support for the effort.

“This region reflects what we say to the rest of America and the rest of the world.” RON SIMS, DEPUTY SECRETARY OF THE U.S. DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT

Strengthening Federal-Regional Ties

“COG MEMBERS ARE EXCITED about President Obama’s new focus on metropolitan regions and we believe that the dialogue and partnership we launch today will help advance that focus here in the National Capital Region and around the country,” COG Chairman Penny Gross told attendees at a meeting hosted by COG and the National Capital Planning Commission with senior Obama Administration officials such as Valerie Jarrett, Adolfo Carrion, and Xavier Briggs. The July 2009 meeting reflected COG’s goal of strengthening ties with its federal partners and looking for new opportunities to work together on issues of importance to the National Capital Region.

Jarrett, who serves as Senior Advisor to President Obama and Assistant for Intergovernmental Affairs, showed enthusiasm for efforts to expand transit-oriented development and clean up the region's waterways. Based on her experience in local government, Jarrett told COG members she understands the frustration that they often feel due to the stove piped and often slow nature of the federal process and will bring this awareness to her work at the federal level.

Keeping the focus on federal-regional partnership, COG Chair Penny Gross invited Deputy Secretary Ron Sims of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to deliver the keynote address at its 2009 Annual Luncheon in December. In a stirring address, Sims told area leaders, "Your task is formidable—you get to be the American lab. This region reflects what we say to the rest of America and the rest of the world." Sims expressed strong support for the goals of the Greater Washington 2050 Coalition and its Region Forward report. He also stressed the importance of ending homelessness and addressing huge disparities in health and education status based on where people live. Emphasizing the need to deal with interrelated issues in a comprehensive way, Sims noted that HUD's Office of Sustainable Housing and Communities will work together more closely with the federal Departments of Transportation (DOT), Agriculture and the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

Pursuing Stimulus Funds

CONCURRENT WITH EFFORTS

to improve the federal-regional partnership, COG and area governments developed a regional approach to aggressively pursue funds from the $787 billion in federal stimulus dollars available under the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act (ARRA). From transportation to housing to environmental projects, the COG Board directed staff to work with member jurisdictions to set priorities and apply for stimulus dollars that would help build a more sustainable and economically resilient region. COG also launched an online regional clearinghouse for news and information on stimulus funds for area governments and stakeholders to refer to.

Priority Bus Corridors

As of the time of this publication, the National Capital Region was awarded $58.8 million from the U.S. Department of Transportation. The funding comes from a new multimodal transportation grant program called TIGER, which stands for Transportation Improvements Generating Economic Recovery. Over $26 million will be invested in improving bus transportation along priority corridors in the District of Columbia, Maryland, and Virginia. Improvements to these corridors include dedicated bus lanes, traffic signal priority, skip stop service, enhanced pedestrian access and bus stops, and real-time passenger information. COG has also been approved for a stimulus grant to manage a Diesel anti-Idling Campaign in the District of Columbia, as well as another grant to update water pollution control plans in the city.

WORKFORCE, CONTINUED

The task force reviewed current programs within and outside the region and identified strategies to better prepare workers to meet labor force needs. The Closing the Gaps to Build the Future report summarizes the task force's findings. The report marks the first time workforce development has been examined at the regional level. At its January 2010 meeting, the Board voted unanimously to adopt the report.

"At a time of immense economic pressure in both the private and public sectors, strengthening the ability to meet current and future employment needs must be a primary focus for the region's policy makers and leaders," said City of Alexandria Mayor Bill Euille, Chair of the task force. "The National Capital Region must be well-positioned to emerge from the current economic downturn more resilient and competitive."

Promoting the 2010 Census

URBAN COMMUNITIES and metropolitan areas have been prone to undercounts in the past, so COG and its local governments are working with their federal partners to conduct a more complete count during the 2010 U.S. Census. In 2009, COG began hosting and coordinating meetings among U.S. Census Bureau officials, area elected officials, school administrators and educators to build regional awareness and encourage participation throughout the District of Columbia, Maryland, and Virginia.

“The District of Columbia and the whole metropolitan region have an extraordinary growth rate,” U.S. Congresswoman Eleanor Holmes Norton (D-DC) said during an event at COG. “We have so much at stake for the 2010 Census.” At these events, officials have reminded residents that the Census guides key policy decisions, impacts their representation in Congress, and influences billions of dollars in government services and investments in transportation improvements, hospitals and schools.

Officials have also stressed the need to count people of all ages, races, ethnic groups—both citizens and non-citizens. They pointed out that there are segments of the population that either distrust the government or do not know about the Census. “We need a combined, united, grassroots effort to reach hard-to-count people,” said Walter Tejada, an Arlington County Board Member.

In the coming year, COG and area governments will help with outreach in a variety of ways such as encouraging employees and constituents to complete and mail their questionnaires, distributing Census forms and educational materials, and continuing to offer meeting space for Census officials.

Speeding Up Bay Restoration

IN ONE OF HIS FIRST EXECUTIVE ORDERS, President Barack Obama pledged “to protect and restore the health, heritage, natural resources, and social and economic value” of the Chesapeake Bay, the nation’s largest estuary. In October 2009, U.S. Senator Benjamin L. Cardin (D-MD), a longtime advocate for the Bay, spoke to the COG Board of Directors about his proposal to restore the Chesapeake Bay.

Cardin's proposal, "The Chesapeake Clean Water and Ecosystem Restoration Act," would codify President Obama's recent Chesapeake Bay Executive Order. The act contains a number of important provisions, including strengthening the federal-state Chesapeake Bay Program, establishing aggressive new deadlines for meeting Bay water quality standards as well as consequences for failing to meet those deadlines, and requiring regular progress reports to Congress.

In July, then COG Chairman Penelope Gross appeared on 'The COG Podcast' to discuss the successes and remaining challenges in improving the health of the Chesapeake Bay. To hear that and/or other episodes, visit www.mwco.org/news

"The health of the Chesapeake Bay is vital to our region," said Cardin. "Leaders at every level need to be at the table on this issue." The Bay would likely be in much worse shape were it not for the federal, state, and local efforts coordinated in the EPA's Chesapeake Bay Program. However, a number of the program's water quality goals have not yet been met, and the restoration process must be accelerated. Population growth, the loss of green space to paved surfaces, and the impacts of climate change have made it more difficult to achieve the program's objectives, Cardin said.

Gaithersburg City Council Member Catherine Drzyzgula told Board members that she looked forward to working with Cardin on restoration of the Bay, and noted that flexibility in implementation will be important. "Some aspects of regulation are best left at the state and local level," Drzyzgula said. "Regulations must also strike a balance among often competing policy goals, such as reducing greenhouse gas emissions and promoting smart growth."

Highlighting Air Quality Progress

PRELIMINARY REGIONAL DATA shows there was less pollution from ozone in 2009 than at any time in the last decade, according to the Metropolitan Washington Air Quality Committee (MWAQC), which monitors the region's air quality. There were only four Code Orange days, meaning unhealthy to groups like children and senior citizens, in 2009, compared to 17 in 2008. In 2009, there were no Code Red days, meaning harmful for everyone. In 2008, three Code Red days were observed.

“On behalf of those of us who have been working for cleaner air, it is gratifying to see that programs implemented five years ago are finally showing results—though it is critical that we do not rest on our laurels,” said Phil Mendelson, 2009 MWAQC Chairman. “We must not pause in our drive to have cleaner, healthier air to breathe.” MWAQC officials said air quality improvements resulted from actions taken over the last five to ten years to reduce emissions from vehicles and power plants, local government programs to increase ridership on public transit and buy energy from renewable sources, and milder than normal weather conditions.

Even though the region’s air quality has improved, the EPA is again considering adopting stricter health standards for ozone because many studies now link much smaller amounts of ozone pollution to serious respiratory problems. MWAQC officials said they will recommend additional action to meet tougher standards.

Connecting People to Local Food

IN NOVEMBER 2009, COG launched NationalCapitalFarms.org, a new web site aimed at promoting and protecting local agriculture in the region. It provides up-to-date information on locally grown food, farmers markets, wineries, and more. The site is hosted by COG on behalf of the Regional Agricultural Workgroup, which includes local governments, farmers, farmers markets, and other nongovernmental organizations.

In April 2009, the COG Board of Directors created the Climate, Energy and Environment Policy Committee to provide leadership and support to reach the goals outlined in COG's Climate Change report. The committee will be responsible for all climate change, energy, green building, alternate fuels, solid waste and recycling policy issues, as well as other environmental issues.

The committee held its inaugural meeting in July. It is the successor to COG's Climate Change Steering Committee, which produced the National Capital Region Climate Change Report. The report was released in 2008 and identifies regional emissions reductions goals for the short and long term. Former COG Board Chairman Penelope Gross appointed Arlington County Chairman Jay Fiset as the committee's first Chairman.

Surveying Highway Congestion

WHILE CONGESTED HIGHWAYS still result in hundreds of lost hours each year for the average resident of the region, the National Capital Region Transportation Planning Board's aerial traffic survey found that the overall level of congestion in the Washington region was actually lower in 2008 than the last time the survey was conducted in 2005.

CONGESTION, CONTINUED

Planners attributed much of the reduction in congestion to a decrease in driving throughout the region. With higher gasoline prices and the onset of the economic downturn, Vehicle Miles Traveled (VMT)—a measure of how much we drive—dropped by 3.1 percent from 2005 to 2008. It was the first time that VMT has

Most congested freeway chokepoints in the region in 2008:

1. Southbound Southwest Freeway (5:30 – 6:30 p.m.) from Southwest Freeway/ I-395 to U.S. Route 1
2. Westbound 11th St. Bridge (8 – 9 a.m.) from I-295/D.C. 295 to Southeast Freeway
3. Northbound Southeast Freeway (4:30 – 6:30 p.m.) from 11th St. to Pennsylvania Ave.
4. Outer Loop I-495 (8 – 9 a.m.) from New Hampshire Ave. to U.S. 29 decreased since the previous survey. In addition to the decrease in road use, congestion was mitigated by localized improvements made by transportation agencies at some of the region's key choke points.

The aerial survey, which has been conducted every three years since 1993, indicates changes in congestion locations and durations in comparison to earlier surveys.

Supporting the Purple Line

IN OCTOBER 2009, the National Capital Region Transportation Planning Board voted unanimously to approve the Purple Line light rail project for inclusion into the region's Constrained Long Range Transportation Plan (CLRP). The Board's vote enabled the state of Maryland to advance the project for federal funding.

The TPB's action on the Purple Line is a culmination of a long process by local, regional, and state officials. Over the past few years, debate primarily focused on the location of the project, as well as whether the line would be light rail or bus rapid transit (BRT). The 16-mile Purple Line will run from Bethesda in Montgomery County to New Carrollton in Prince George's County, linking major residential and commercial centers and connecting to existing Metro, MARC, and Amtrak stations.

Other than the Purple Line, no significant new projects were added in the TPB's 2009 long-range plan update. With state and local budgets facing drastic shortfalls, most changes in the new plan were delays in the completion dates of projects and in some cases, the removal of projects from the plan altogether.

Expanding Transportation Choices

COMMUTER CONNECTIONS, known for its online commuter ride-matching system and Guaranteed Ride Home program, is now offering additional ways to make ridesharing in the metropolitan Washington region easier: ride-matching for special events and a cash-for-carpooling incentive program.

The events ride-matching feature allows users to easily connect with others that live or work near them who plan to attend the same event. Users will then be in a position to discuss setting up a ride to and/or from the event, and in the process, they may meet people with similar interests.

Commuter Connections also launched 'Pool Rewards, a pilot program aimed at encouraging commuters in three of the region's most congested corridors to try carpooling to and from work instead of driving alone. Commuters traveling mornings on I-395 from the District across the 14th St. Bridge into Northern Virginia; the Capital Beltway from Bethesda to Tysons Corner; and the Beltway from the Baltimore-Washington Parkway to I-270; and back in the afternoon, may qualify for a $1 each way incentive for carpooling during the 'Pool Rewards pilot program.

'POOL REWARDS

cash for carpools

The program is similar to Atlanta's highly successful Cash for Commuters effort. At the end of its first five years, the Atlanta program has coaxed more than 29,000 drivers out of their cars and saved 32.8 million vehicle miles traveled, with 64 percent of its participants continuing to use commute alternatives at least once per week after the cash reward program ended.

Focusing on Childhood Obesity, Health Disparities

AREA HEALTH OFFICIALS working together at COG released two major reports in 2009 on childhood obesity and health disparities in the region. An April 2009 survey on childhood obesity showed that while area school systems meet or exceed national nutrition standards, they fall short of the recommended time allotment for elementary school physical education. The survey was sent by a COG workgroup of area health officials to local school systems, planning agencies and health departments to identify gaps in programs and policies to prevent and reduce obesity. The committee held a forum later in the year for area elected officials, school board members, and community leaders to address obesity prevention efforts and develop outreach plans for the coming years.

HEALTH, CONTINUED

COG and the Washington Grantmakers released a report in June 2009 that indicated that health can differ quite dramatically depending upon where a person lives in the region. The report showed major disparities in categories such as life expectancy and infant mortality. According to the study, race and ethnicity, education and income, family history and early life experience, even the neighborhoods and homes in which people live are important factors in determining health. These factors are collectively referred to as the “social determinants” of health. “While health care is an essential component of any strategy to protect health, of equal importance are the other factors that can prevent health problems and improve basic health and well being,” said Tamara Copeland, President of the Washington Grantmakers.

Preparing for

New Challenges

IN JANUARY 2009, enormous, record-setting crowds attended events related to the inauguration of Barack Obama as President of the United States of America, which presented a number of challenges to area governments. The inaugural events required close collaboration among federal, state, and local government officials and regional and non-governmental organizations in order to create an open and accessible environment that still met strict public safety and security requirements.

COG provided a wide-range of assistance in the months leading up to the events, including participation in numerous planning meetings and the coordination of regular conference calls led by the District of Columbia City Administrator to allow key stakeholders to share updates with each other. After the Inauguration, COG worked with D.C.'s Homeland Security and Emergency Management Agency to complete an after action report to review how the region prepared for and supported the Presidential Inauguration and to identify improvements for future inaugurations.

Throughout the year, the H1N1 virus was a primary focus for public health and emergency preparedness officials. COG provided a subject matter expert to assist in the preparedness for and response to H1N1. COG also supported communication and coordination across all health sectors and worked with public information officers to help communicate key messages like washing hands, staying home when sick, and getting vaccinated across the region.

Expanding Outreach through Social Media

IN AN EFFORT TO REACH a broader audience, COG and some of its programs are utilizing social media, such as Facebook and Twitter. Through these avenues, COG is able to more thoroughly interact with an engaged audience than permitted by traditional one-way methods of communication. For example, COG's Facebook page includes news items, video clips, and podcasts, and will link elected officials, stakeholders, and members of the public to COG's work. "Last year COG launched its podcast series. This year we've added social media to our outreach efforts," said David Robertson, COG's

Executive Director. "We continue to work to move the region forward through a variety of approaches."

In addition to COG's main Facebook page, a number of COG programs are also on Facebook, including:

- Commuter Connections
- Kids Need Families Like Yours: Foster-Adopt Recruitment in Metropolitan Washington
- National Capital Region Transportation Planning Board (TPB)
- Clean Air Partners (also on Twitter)
