Baltimore riders with limited incomes can apply online at www.spinaccess.com to be approved for free rides.

Users that are enrolled in public benefits programs (e.g., utility discount program or SNAP, among other programs) are eligible for free e-scooter and e-bike rides.

Equity Plan Ridership Is Growing

A rider that has an equity plan takes about 50% more trips using dockless vehicles each month than non-equity plan users. An equity plan user takes over 6 micromobility trips per month whereas a non-equity plan user takes an average of 4 micromobility trips per month.

Building Partnerships

BCDOT received $21,500 from the Better Bike Share Partnership to effectively reach transportation-insecure communities by hosting low-income micromobility plan registration events, providing free rides, sponsoring bike lane clean-up activities, and distributing informational materials at libraries and community centers.

Identifying Workforce Development Opportunities

Spin and VETWorkS are developing an e-bike mechanics course for local veterans. The organization, VETWorkS provides vocational training to veterans and helps connect veterans to employment opportunities in Baltimore.
