BACKGROUND and EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Bike to Work Day has been held annually in the Washington metropolitan region for over a decade and was originally started by the Washington Area Bicyclist Association with a main rallying point or pit stop in downtown DC. In September 2000, The National Capital Region Transportation Board (TPB's) Commuter Connections program, housed at the Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments, partnered with WABA to form a regional Bike to Work Day Steering Committee to examine the feasibility of adding additional Bike to Work Day pit stops or rallying points throughout the region in 2001, thus creating a larger awareness of using cycling to work as a viable commuting alternative. Since that first involvement with Bike to Work Day in 2001, annual registrations for the event have increased by 719%. The event saw continuous growth in registrations until this year.

More than 17,200 bicyclists registered for Bike to Work Day 2018, a 7.9 percent decrease under 2017. The May 18th event was held at 100 local pit stops, including a total of nine afternoon pit stops. Several bicycles were raffled off and the first 16,000 registrants who attended received a free BTWD 2018 T-shirt.

The approximate breakdown of registrants by pit stops was:

Bicyclists enjoyed free T-shirts, snacks, participated in prize drawings, and heard live bands as well as music spun by DJs, and listened and talked to elected officials. Commuter Connections secured $59,800 in cash sponsorship donations that went towards the overall regional marketing efforts.

The success of the marketing promotion campaign relied upon targeting of employer and commuter audiences, identification of cost-effective mediums, crafting key messages, and procuring giveaway items such as t-shirts and water bottles designed to attract commuters to try bicycling to work.

The Steering Committee's resources for Bike to Work Day 2018, included:

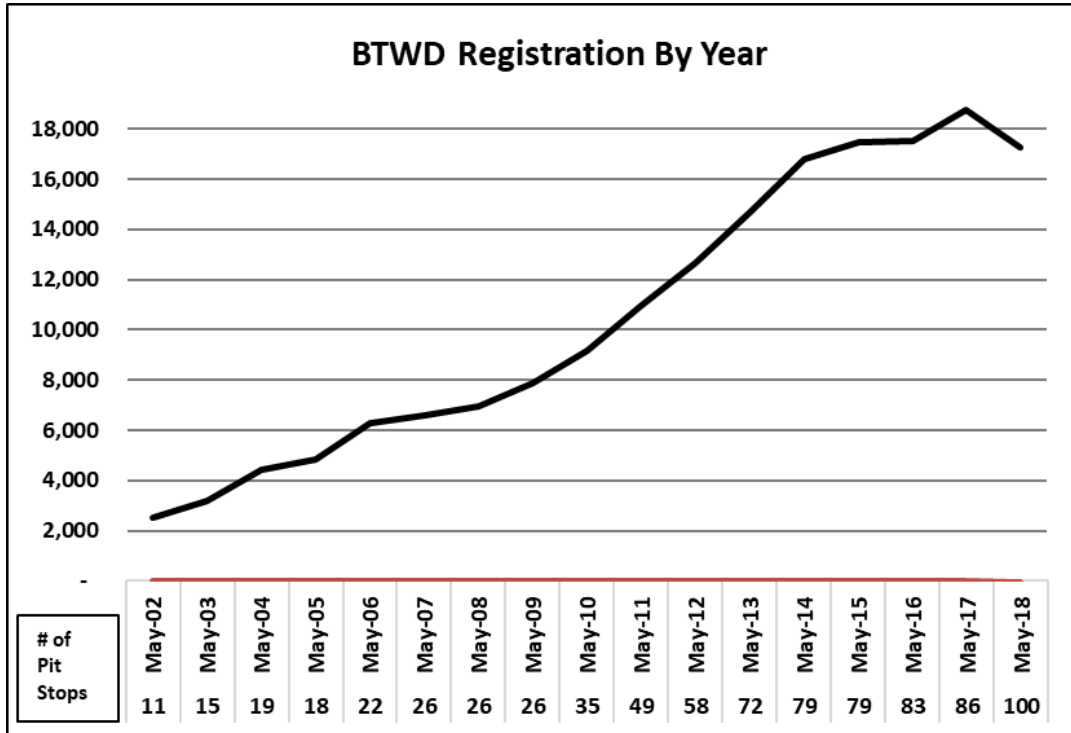

- Web site designed and maintained by Commuter Connections.
- Posters and rack cards developed and printed by Commuter Connections.
- Promoting the event through WABA's membership.
- A radio campaign produced and placed by Commuter Connections.
- Outreach to employers through a direct mail and email marketing campaign by Commuter Connections.
- An article in the Commuter Connections employer newsletter.
- Local marketing efforts by the various pit stop managers.
- An e-mail to previous year's participants by Commuter Connections.
- Banners designed and printed by Commuter Connections.
- A public affairs outreach effort through the Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments Office of Communications and WABA.
- The design and distribution of free t-shirts by Commuter Connections.
- Donated giveaway prizes through BicycleSPACE.
- Donated bicycles for the regional raffle from Spokes Etc. Bicycles, BicycleSPACE, and Bikes@Vienna.

In addition, 19 confirmed bicycling convoy routes were identified by WABA along with route leaders who assisted novice and experienced cyclists through the routes. Each route traveled to a pit stop where cyclists received free refreshments, t-shirts and other giveaways. Many pit stops had additional activities for bicyclists and are described later in this report.

Since 2000, the COG/TPB's Commuter Connections program has worked to increase awareness of bicycling to work as a viable commute option by joining with the WABA in their efforts to promote and coordinate the region's annual Bike to Work Day event. Commuter Connections created and maintains a regional marketing effort that helped to increase the number of cyclists participating in the yearly event from 1,100 in 2001 to 17,200 in 2018. Although it accounts for a small percentage of the overall regional commute mode split, bicycling helps reduce traffic congestion, improves air quality, and provides a healthy commute alternative for those commuters who choose to use it as a sustainable means of transportation to and from work.

Since 2006, the Bike to Work Day Event has a budget line item for the Commuter Connections Work Program. Commuter Connections is funded by the District of Columbia, Maryland, Virginia, and U.S. Departments of Transportation.

HIGHLIGHTS FROM AREA PIT-STOPS

Adams Morgan: The weather kept most of the 542 riders registered at our pit stop away, but we still had a good turnout despite the rain. We were joined by BicycleSPACE and City Bikes, both of whom set up mini workshops to help riders tune their bikes. Tryst brought out several boxes of bananas and cookies along with hot coffee to warm the wet riders, and The Line Hotel handed out their own in-house breakfast bars as well as water to refill riders' bottles. Ward 1 Councilmember Brianne Nadeau was on hand to help draw names for our raffle items, including a variety of gear contributed by BicycleSPACE and a brand new bike from City Bikes. We also gave away two frame bags donated by Adams Morgan business Grip Unlimited. Everything ran smoothly thanks to the WABA Bike Ambassadors and others who came out to help.

Alexandria – Carlyle: In its 7th year, the Carlyle Pit Stop continues to grow its registration rolls each year and saw a surprisingly strong turnout after a soggy week. Local eateries stepped up to offer freshly made breakfast items and Starbucks coffee. Carlyle's local businesses were present with fun giveaways. Representatives from bicycling shops and groups offered advice, maps and on-the-spot bike maintenance. Carlyle's nonstop raffle gave away many gifts including a 2-night stay at The Westin Alexandria. Carlyle Council, the Pit Stop host, gave away bike lights and recyclable tote bags to registered bicyclists. The talented DJ Scott Fallon made his first appearance to keep the crowd energized. Carlyle's generous sponsors donated serious swag, food, volunteers and exhibit items:

Wheel Nuts, Bicycle Pro Shoppe, Nando's, Spokes, Massages by Marc, Port City Brewery, Potomac Riverboat Company, King Street Wellness, and Pedigo donated prizes which allowed us to raffle off 47 great give away prizes valued at $30-$250 every 30 minutes from 6:45 to 8:30 am.

Among our sponsors were, Wheel Nuts, WABA, Bicycle Pro Shop, GoAlex Mobile Store, Vitamin Shoppe, Eco City, Leukemia & Lymphoma Society, BPAC, Vision Zero, Metropolitan Headache and Spine Center, Nando's, Spokes, INOVA Alexandria Hospital, Toole Design, The Thornton and King Street Wellness. Many thanks to the City of Alexandria for their ongoing support of this great event. Without them this event would not have been such a great success.

Our annual DJ Tracy Foust played a good set of upbeat music to keep the crowd pumped up as t-shirts and water bottles were handed out at registration. Jonathan Strauss our MC kept the crowd engaged with his radio announcers voice. Many thanks to City of Alexandria Mayor Allison Silberberg who was in great support of this event. We had over 10 City of Alexandria volunteers who graced the event with the beautiful white GoAlex Polo's.

Anacostia: Due to the rain, the Anacostia pit stop was moved inside of the Anacostia Arts Center. The pit stop event was held from 7am-9am, hosted by goDCgo (Danelle Carey and Erin Ghalayini) and Lester Wallace with Capital Bikeshare's Community Partners Program. Keith Jackson with the Anacostia Bike Company volunteered at the pit stop to provide free bike maintenance and repairs to cyclists who stopped by. Our tables were stocked with the 2018 DC Bike Maps, water bottles, bike lights, bags and additional goDCgo and Capital Bikeshare swag. Capital Bikeshare provided an annual membership to the pit stop which was raffled off to one lucky winner. Additionally, attendees who registered for the Anacostia pit stop received a Bike to Work Day t-shirt. Light breakfast was provided by goDCgo for cyclists who stopped by the station. Bicyclist received granola bars, fruits, and water to energize them for the rest of their commute.

There were 75 registrants for the Anacostia pit stop, which were a mix of individuals who registered prior to the event, and some who registered when they arrived that morning. Other cyclists also joined without registering, and passersby's approached to ask about the event or how to start biking in the city. The pit stop was open from 7-9am. Since we had to relocate we made sure to reach out all registrants that didn't stop by so they can obtain their swag and t-shirts.

Anacostia River Trail/River Terrace: There were 12 folks who visited the ART/Benning Road Pit stop that were not registered and we had 16 registered folks show up. There were about 40 registered for the stop.

T-shirts were given to the folks that came though they were not registered since the turnout was lower than expected.

Annandale: The event was held at Wakefield Park/Audrey Moore RECenter from 6:30am to 9am. There were 23 registrants for the pit stop.

Arlington – Army National Guard Readiness: TARC's bike to work day turned out to be a bigger success than planned. We thought the rain would hinder quite a few participants but were proven wrong. We set up around 5:30am and had roughly about 60 bikers stop by. We offered Gatorade, water, fruit, nuts, t-shirts, water jugs, bike reflectors and an assortment of other items provided to us by Arlington Transportation partners. The pit stop host, Gary Dyson, also paid for additional giveaways out of pocket to show gratitude for patrons that participated.

Arlington – Rosslyn, Columbia Pike, Shirlington, Ballston, and Two Happy Hours: Despite rainy weather, Bike to Work Day 2018 was a great event in Arlington! The Rosslyn pit stop was again held at Gateway Park and the Ballston pit stop was held at Spokes, Etc. bike shop. The Columbia Pike location was held at Penrose Square and the Shirlington was located just outside the public library. DJs played a good set of upbeat music to keep the crowd pumped up as t-shirts were handed out at registration. An instant winner raffle/giveaway was implemented again this year with prizes for each cyclist. Both afternoon pit stops had augmented bike parking.

Refreshments included bagels, granola bars, bananas and coffee from Republik Coffee. Various stops had additional in-kind food donations from District Taco, Nando's Peri Peri, sweetgreen, Mom's Organic Market, and KIND Snacks. Employer Challenge Luncheon

Each year Commuter Connections recognizes an employer within the region which had outstanding participation in the Bike to Work Day event. One of the top employers (based on total registration) are randomly selected to receive a luncheon for participating bicyclists. With more than 250 registrants, this year's Bike to Work Day Employer Challenge winner was the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). In partnership with the Washington Area Bicyclist Association, Commuter Connections sponsored a luncheon at the Ronald Reagan Building and International Trade Center for EPA employees. Of 100 Bike to Work Day pit stops throughout the region in 2018, EPA employees registered at 37, in eight jurisdictions. The top five most registered pit stops for EPA employees were Downtown DC at Freedom Plaza, Crystal City Water Park, Rosslyn Gateway Park, Old Town Alexandria, and Alexandria Del Ray. Other bike friendly employers in the top five in 2018 included the National Institutes of Health, U.S. State Department, The World Bank, and the U.S. Department of Justice.

Capital Bikeshare rolling into Prince George's County

By Liz Lane

Bikes line a Capital Bikeshare station on the corner of Eighth and G streets NW in D.C. (Brittany Gressory/The Washington Post)

Bikeshare rolls into Prince George's County next week when five Capital Bikeshare stations open for business on May 15.

The distinctive red bicycles will be available along a stretch of the Route 1 corridor from Mount Rainier to Riverdale Park and in the Largo area, in what is the latest expansion of the region's bike-share network.

For Bike-To-Work Week, These D.C. Advocates Guard A Bike Lane

by Jacob Feniston

David Magliaro took part in the human protected bike lane on 14th St. Northeast to show that D.C.'s cycling infrastructure still needs work.

Most drivers in D.C. likely are familiar with protected bike lanes, set apart from car traffic by bollards or curbs. But during this year's bike-to-work week, cyclists tried another tactic to draw attention to areas where the region's infrastructure isn't doing a good job of keeping people on bikes safe — human-protected bike lanes.

D.C. is consistently ranked among the top biking cities in the nation, as are so are some of its suburbs, including Arlington and Alexandria, Virginia. But lately, some cyclists say the progress isn't happening fast enough — that the region is not keeping up with other innovative cities and not even keeping up with some local.

Herdon PI Stop draws both morning and afternoon cyclists at Bike to Work Day 2018.

By MARISA HERRON

Herndon PI Stop was a new experience for us, a great environment where cycling is so prevalent. This is the first time I've ever ridden to work. I set out at 6:15 this morning and I'm glad I got up the morning of commuting by car."

Participants at the Herdon PI Stop during Bike to Work Day 2018 were encouraged to join the existing experience through their Ride Buddy for Bike to Work Day program using the online Washington Area Bike Forum system to riders of all ability levels. Meet-to-be system would pick up a bike at one of the hundreds of Capital Bikeshare stations in Fairfax County including the station on the Herdon PI Stop in Herndon. Herndon PI Stop participants arranged their way to their bikes and then to the Herdon PI Stop. There, they met with staff, learned, shared, and socialized and then to the W & O Trail.

COUNTY'S FIRST EVER POP-UP BIKE LANE TO DEBUT ON BIKE TO WORK DAY

Montgomery County's first pop-up bike lane will make Bike to Work Day a safe and worry-free event on Friday, May 18, in Bethesda.

From 6 a.m. to 8 p.m., this protected bike lane will start at the traffic circle at Cheltenham Drive and Tibury Street, cross Wisconsin Avenue, head south on Woodmont Avenue and end at the entrance to Capital Crescent Trail, according to the Montgomery County government website.

The pop-up lane will also serve as a pilot for a permanent protected bike lane on Woodmont Avenue.

Over hundreds of stops all over the DMV area will provide Bike to Work Day participants with refreshments, free T-shirts, and chances to win bicycles and other prizes.

Participants are welcome to join any of 19 free bicycle convoys led by experienced bike commuters.

In 2008, the Washington, D.C., region was ranked No. 1 Best metropolitan area by the American College of Sports Medicine. Bike to Work Day organizers Commuter Connections and Washington Area Bicyclist Association say they hope enough people will participate to help the region win it back the title.

"Bicycling can improve your health, keep you active, and reduce your carbon footprint, all while saving you thousands of dollars at the gas pump," Nicholas Ramos, Commuter Connections director, said.

Anyone wishing to participate in Bike to Work Day can register for free at www.biketoworkmetrodc.org

BIKE TAKEAWAY: If you are already a true believer in biking to work and a year-round bike commuter, we have three easy things you can do to make Bike to Work Day on Friday, May 10, extra awesome.

Bike to Work Day is a region-wide celebration of people getting to work by bike, whether it's your first time trying it out or you've been doing it for 20 years.

It's an opportunity for people to feel the sun on their cheeks and the wind in their hair as they try something new, and about growing the pie of people who want safer roads and trails for people walking and biking. I mean, it's also about grabbing some bagels and coffee with a great mix of other bike-powered travelers before ducking into your office.

Bike to Work Day 2018

This year's Bike to Work observation took me in Washington, D.C. where it's mostly confined to one day, Friday, which I guess is the officially designated Big Day. That, of course, puts all the shops on one day's weather which is not-spring and certainly no-heat. As happens last year (see below) Friday in Cedar Rapids was wet and not even your humble blogger was biking to work in that stop. This year in Washington, Bike to Work Day fell on a wet day—the fourth day in a row of miserable precipitation, as I happened which had exactly clouded out completely.

Bike to Work Day in Washington has mobile and stationary features. On the mobile side, vibrant bicycle convoys through various parts of the metropolitan area, heavily all started in suburban locations. Eight of them ended at Freedom Plaza in Washington's business district, and others ended

THE DC BIKE BLOGGER

I'm not a fanatical cyclist. I'm not a professional writer or photographer either. I'm just a guy who works in Washington, D.C., and uses my lunch break each day to go for a bike ride and document some of the eclectic ideas and events in and around the city. I take a few snapshots along the way with my cellphone, and then use this Blog to post the photos and write about what I see, what I learn, and what I think about while I explore our nation's capital on the ride at a time.

This Year's Soggy National Bike to Work Day

The month of May is National Bike Month, May 14 through 18, 2018 is Bike to Work Week, and today was Bike to Work Day. And although it hasn't been raining all month, it has been raining all week. And it continued to rain all day today. But Bike to Work Day is a rain or shine event, but that didn't stop this morning's Bike to Work Day event, which went on more or less as planned.

The League of American Bicyclists began Bike to Work Day as part of Bike Month in 1995. Over the years, Bike to Work Day has grown into a widespread event with countless bicyclists taking to streets and trails nationwide in an effort to get commuters to try bicycling to work as a healthy and safe alternative to driving a car. In the greater D.C. region, Bike to

Faces of Fairfax: Lou From Springfield

Unconcerned about the rain on BTWD 2018, Lou from Springfield took some time to talk to FABS about his views on bicycling in Fairfax County. Lou rides for his health, laughingly adding that biking takes miles off his car and puts them on his body. He regularly commutes to work by bike. This year he also is riding to get ready to participate in the Multiple Sclerosis Society's Bike MS: Colonial Crossroads Challenge in early June. Lou told us that he really likes being out in the fresh air as he exercises. To make it easier and safer to ride in the county, Lou recommends better enforcement of the three-foot safe passing law. He also would like to see more bicycle facilities added as businesses expand along Loudside Road in Springfield.

Lou

FABS is happy to report that Fairfax County's Bicycle Master Plan, which we supported and helped get approved, includes numerous bike lanes and shoulders on and around Loudside Road and Commerce Street. Between 2015 and 2017, some of these facilities were added as part of the Virginia Department of Transportation's summer repaving program. Although no additions are planned for this summer in this area, there will be future opportunities for the repaving program to provide this virtually cost-free bicycle infrastructure.

Blumenauer, Crowley Release Proposal to Expand Bicycle Commuting

MAY 16, 2018

Washington, DC – Today, in recognition of Bike to Work Day, Representatives Earl Blumenauer (OR-03) and Joe Crowley (NY-14), Chairman of the House Democratic Caucus, released a new proposal to modify and expand the bicycle commuter tax benefit to encourage more employees to bike to work.

The proposal increases the monthly limitation currently set on bicycle commuting expenses and modifies the bicycle commuter tax benefit to allow employees to take full advantage of the benefit. It also expands the bicycle commuter tax benefit to include bikeshare memberships as a qualifying expense.

"Cycling is the most efficient form of urban transportation ever devised," said Rep. Blumenauer. "With more Americans cycling to work than ever before, it's past time that the federal government provide the flexibility and incentives needed to encourage bike commuting and offer more transportation choices."

"Giving employees the ability to make an affordable bike to work will benefit our economy, our environment, and our

NSAB Encourages Bike to Work Day Participation

By WCI John Martinez-Walton NSAB Public Affairs May 15, 2018

Local Support Activity Bethesda Transportation Manager Ryan Emery is encouraging people to take part in National Bike to Work Day May 18.

The event is part of a larger effort to get commuters to try bicycling to work as a healthier alternative than driving and taking the metro, while also trying to reduce traffic in the area.

"We partner with NSAB to help support the event and to show the athletic nature of being to work and how it can help reduce stress and provide a more athletic commute," said Emery.

According to the National Day Calendar website, National Bike to Work Day originated in 1983 and is endorsed by the American Medical Association.

People don't need to worry about where to leave their bikes if they do plan to ride to NSAB.

"We have several hundred slots for bikes around the base," said Emery. "It depends on when and where they were installed so to have many slots they can support." They are primarily centered around the hospital and are also made at the parking garages.

Bike to Work Day also encourages people to ride in groups.

"Some folks will form convoys so they can ride together in case they aren't comfortable on their first go-round," said Emery. "Every year we have one or two groups come from as far away as Colorado and ride through the city to get here. It's very good. It builds camaraderie."
